It is a member of the social networking service category of web 2.0. There is a Facebook for every person on the planet. Users can create an account if they are a person who would like to connect with people on Facebook. They can create groups, add friends and upload pictures. Profiles and status updates are also very important. Facebook also has optional applications that users can use. Such applications are games and quizzes. Users must have an email address to be able to sign up for an account on the Facebook website. After the user is signed in, he can see the games and quizzes available, other people on the website and groups and other people with whom he is connected. Once the user creates an account on Facebook, all of the people he is connected with will also have an account on Facebook. Some people may not want to have a Facebook account, but other users may like having them. People can send Facebook invites to friends via email or the Facebook website. The most popular feature of Facebook is its ability to upload a lot of pictures of people and things. Other features include games and quizzes, groups, messaging and event planning.
