Ees Software Full Version 16

By default, the calculations are stopped when 100 iterations have occurred, the elapsed time exceeds 60 sec, the maximum residual is less than 10^{-6} or the maximum variable change is less than 10^{-9} . These defaults can be changed with the Stop Criteria command in the Options menu. If the maximum residual is larger than the value set for the stopping criteria, the equations were not correctly solved, possibly because the bounds on one or more variables constrained the solution. Clicking the Continue button will remove the information dialog and display the Solution window. The problem is now completed since the values of T_2 , m_{dot_2} , and Vel_2 are determined. However, note that EES indicates that there are potential unit problems.

EES will display the unit problems if it is set to automatically check units. Usually, the unit problems arise because the units of some of the variables have not been specified. Often, a unit conversion is needed and in some cases, one or more equations may be dimensionally incorrect. Click the Check Units button to see a list of the unit errors for this example.
